The Program:

Being a teenager can be difficult. Teens are often confronted with situations they don't know how to handle, or end up in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Being a parent to a teenager can be equally as challenging. Many parents wonder whether their son or daughter may be challenged with issues like alcohol and drug use, or unsafe Internet use. Many parents are unaware of the significance these issues have in the lives of their teens.

Both teens and parents can find answers to important questions at "Is Your Teen at Risk?" The forum addresses issues facing our teens and provides information to help parents make informed decisions about their children.
