OC PUBLIC LIBRARIES ANNOUNCES TEEN CREATIVITY CONTEST

Orange County teens ages 12 to 18 are invited to enter their creative works in a contest sponsored by OC Public Libraries. OC Voices & Visions showcases works of prose, poetry, art and film. A new theme is announced at the beginning of each month, with entries due by the last day of the month. Winning entries are published on the OC Public Libraries website.

The theme for the month of January, 2011 is Humor! All entries must relate to the theme, and will be judged on how well they interpret it. Entries must be the teen's original work, using only non-copyrighted materials in their production. Entries will be judged by panels of librarians. Winners of the December contest will be on the library's website in March, 2011.

Teens may enter only one work per category each month, but can enter more than one category. They must have a valid OC Public Libraries library card to enter. Information on the contest and on how to get a card can be found at www.ocpl.org. All OC Public Libraries branch libraries will have entry forms as well.

For further information, contact any OC Public Libraries branch.